

Classic's Pea Turns Up Under Crimson Shell

The strain on muscles and oars is shown by M.I.T.'s varsity eight as it strains for speed in the varsity eight consolation race won by UCLA.

— Staff photos

A Massachusetts Institute of Technology oarsman naps under his trying socks between races. It was not a good day for the Engineers, starting with a fourth-place finish in their qualifying heat and ending with a like placing in the consolation eight finals.

— Staff Photo

— Staff photos by Thane McIntosh

— Staff photo

Part of the turnout of approximately 10,000 crowds the shore while others sit on a sailboat to watch UC Irvine easily win the freshman eight consolation finals.

— Staff photo by Thane McIntosh

Navy Secretary J. William Mendenhall II points enthusiastically towards the Naval Academy's shell before the varsity eight heat in 6:27.3 and placed fifth in the finals. Coupled with a fourth in the junior varsity eights, it was Navy's top Crew Classic performance.

varsity eight heat in 6:27.3 and placed fifth in the finals. Coupled with a fourth in the junior varsity eights, it was Navy's top Crew Classic performance.

— Staff photo by Thane McIntosh

The University of Pennsylvania was all business. The women's four, from left, Laura Steiner, Sheila Dugan and Sue Morgan won to further their Olympic Games hopes while coach Ted Nash (hand raised) talks strategy with

Harvard's varsity eight has a four-seat second Crew Classic championship in course record of 6:01.8 down choppy, wind-